

The FCC always talk about the benefits of competition and pontificates its virtues. Now the FCC is contemplating a rule that will stifle the very thing it supports and endorses, competition!

Mr. Powell of the FCC has said that competition will create and enable new technology. Well a new technology is already here, Satellite Radio. The National Association of Broadcasters (NAB) has lobbied the House of Representatives to restrict Satellite Radio from offering traffic and weather and other valuable services to its listeners, limiting the competition the FCC fully endorses.

I believe the FCC should not limit over 1.7 million Satellite Radios listening choice and right by endorsing HR 4026. Let the market place determine what is good for the public, not a government entity.

I have used the Satellite weather and traffic service. It provide a more comprehensive and reliable service. The service is update and broadcast more frequently, providing in all a much better picture of what is actually happening in real time. Not minutes or some times hours after the fact like regular broadcasting medium does.

The normal broadcasting media is not responsive to its customers and users, please do not limit my choice.
